COURSE INFORMATION

Corporate governance procedures help a business become more efficient while reducing both risk and the potential for corruption, mismanagement and failure.

If you are not trained in law, you may be surprised by the number of rules, regulations and laws you may break while operating a business, without even knowing it! A good corporate governance programme can boost your reputation, ensure discharge of fiduciary duties of directors, including managing conflicts of interests and mitigating risks, including the potential for poor strategy. Companies following a set of good corporate governance principles and best practices will tend to act in the best interest of the organisation and its stakeholders, building trust, as well as enjoying greater sustainable value creation. This course will cover the latest principles and best practices of corporate governance and responsibilities of directors, discussing key trends as well as using relevant case studies.
