PURPOSE

The Executive Director: HR provides visionary leadership and strategic direction for UCT's Human Resources function, driving the development and implementation of an institution-wide human capital management strategy aligned with UCT's Vision 2030. In collaboration with the University Executive, the Executive Director plays a key role in positioning UCT as a globally recognized institution and Employer of Choice. The role ensures that the leadership and management of the University's HR Department are fully aligned with UCT's strategic goals, fostering a culture that attracts, develops, and retains a diverse and highly qualified workforce. Reporting directly to the DVC: People & Culture, the Executive Director is responsible for cultivating an inclusive, supportive, and high-performance working environment that advances institutional growth and excellence.

The Executive Director: HR also oversees the delivery of HR services across the University, ensuring that HR strategies and operations are effective, efficient, and aligned with the needs of the institution. UCT has devolved significant responsibility for line management to Deans, Executive Directors, and other levels of management, and HR serves as a strategic, advisory partner to support them in executing their responsibilities. Additionally, the Executive Director will lead efforts to develop and maintain strong relationships with key stakeholders, including internal clients, unions, and external service providers, ensuring collaborative and effective partnerships that advance the university's goals.
